the west side of Central street for a short distance south of Washington, and later all of the track on Central street will be moved to the west side. This was done in order to make the turn into Washington street. The ties and rails have been laid through Washington street to South Main street and as far south as Pine street. They expect to have the extension completed in about two weeks. The selectmen have decided to lay a board walk from the southern terminal to the White River Chair company's factory.

Those people who have been benefitted by the service on Central street naturally did not like the idea of having the northern end of the Central street line cut out and a petition was circulated in objection to the change. This petition, signed by about 100 of the residents in the territory involved, was persented to Mr. Addis last night. It expresses the belief that a line on Washington street, passing the school-house, will be a menace to public safery and asks that the rails be relaid as far north as Thomas or Pearl street and extended thence to South Main. They say, although this is not in the petition, that they can walk to Washington street to board the cars, and some of the cars, and some of the cars to the cars that turn the cars to the cars that turn the cars that the cars that the cars that the cars that the cars the cars that the

Too Harsh with Him.

Along a country road walked a man and woman. The latter, a gaunt, sternfaced female, was bullying the meek little fellow who trudged just in front of her with downcast head. Suddenly the woman, turning, saw a bull racing down the road behind them. She quickly took refuge in the hedge, but her companion, unconscious of aught but his woes, kept on his way. The bull caught up to him and sent him spinning into a muddy ditch, then continued on its wild career. As the wobegone figure crawled out of the mire he saw his better half coming toward him. Plucking up his little spirit he whimpered:

"M-M-Maria, if you hit me like that a-g-g-ain you'll get my temper up, so I warn ye."-[Ideas.
